

HRIS & Financial Systems Support: Benefit Administration and Communication Systems

There have been a lot of changes in Employee Benefits and HR data management and communication systems in the last few years. Recent innovations in this area coupled with ever increasing government regulation makes it a good time to discuss this important area of your business administration. Bill's presentation will take a look at some of the recent developments and give us insight into how you can ensure that these new systems are working to your best advantage.
